

Information Packaging

Wednesday, 26 September 2007

Last Updated Friday, 18 April 2008

Information Packaging is exactly what it sounds like, packaging for information. Information Packaging utilizes each and every one of our capabilities and probably represents our highest quality category. Its not uncommon to find such things as special laminations and coatings, unique papers and plastics, special closures like magnets and Velcro, wildly creative structural design, and seemingly impossible finishing techniques. When information and its presentation is the most crucial element of the product, nothing fits the bill like the information packaging solutions of quality color.

Enjoy the case studies and samples and if you would like to get your hands on some samples of your own or need to discuss an idea that's running through your head, give one of our Information Packaging specialists a call.

We're always happy to engage in 'ideation' and we have CAD designers waiting to turn your Information Packaging dreams into realities.